A Message from the Program Director

Lisa Steinkamp, PT, MS, MBA

Dear alumni and friends,

I am going to take up less space writing so I can fit more photos in this newsletter!

As you know, we held an alumni reunion in November and I have included messages from alumni who were unable to attend. Ten students recently returned from Belize with faculty members Kristi Hallisy, Karen Patterson, and adjunct faculty member Jeff Hartman, and Karen and I are getting ready to take five students to Uganda in May. The UW-Madison DPT program is a supporting sponsor of the Cross-Cultural special interest group’s Global Health Reception at the Combined Sections Meeting, where we are displaying our poster “Initiating a Global Health Clinical Rotation for Physical Therapy Students: the UW-Uganda Connection.”

We are wrapping up our admissions for the Class of 2013 and I am pleased to say we had many applicants who expressed an interest in working in underserved areas of Wisconsin. This is our second year of asking about rural interests on our application, and three of the students who expressed interest in the last class are now taking an interdisciplinary elective entitled “Overview of Rural Health.” When students graduate, we have a liaison at the Office of Rural Health who will help place them in underserved areas. We hope this pipeline approach will prove to be a small step in the right direction in helping to solve our rural health care crisis.

Special thanks to the following friends with spinal cord injuries who so graciously helped our students in labs: Tim Austin, Erin Brownell, Monica Kamelrossa, Mike Mohr, David Rooney, Jeff Russell, and Eric Tollakson.

All the best,

Lisa Steinkamp, PT, MS, MBA
We are so proud of our students’ commitment to service learning, both home and abroad. Last fall, they added raking lawns through Independent Living, Inc. to their already packed agenda. Students continued with Adopt-a-Highway and fundraising for their Combined Sections Meeting trip through the sales of clothing, Bucky Books, PT clipboards, massage fundraisers, and working Badger basketball game concessions. They volunteered at the Healthy Classrooms symposium and engaged in lots of outreach, including speaking to Kinesiology clubs, the Health Occupations Students of America, a Women in Health Care event, and our Meet the Program event. During the holidays, students held a food drive contest with Occupational Therapy students, adopted a family, celebrated with medical students for beating law students in the Dean’s Cup (a series of athletic competitions), and commemorated the end of a busy semester with a holiday party. They sponsored a CE course with the WPTA Southeast District in January, where Marcella Andrews, MPT, PCS (Class of 2000) spoke on “Transition from Inpatient to Community Therapy for Pediatrics;” Connie Kittleson, PT, DPT spoke on “Understanding Lab Test Results and Their Effects on PT Practice;” faculty members Kristi Hallisy, PT, MS, OCS, CMPT, CPI and Colleen Cobey, PT, MS, FAAOMPT spoke on “Manual Therapy for Joint Dysfunctions of the Lower Leg, Ankle and Foot;” and Jill Boissonnault, PT, PhD spoke on “Jurisprudence in Relation to Violence and Abuse in the Lives of Physical Therapy Clients.” Students also helped coordinate two anatomy review courses in November (thank you, Dr. Bersu!). In February, students attended PT Legislative Day at the State Capitol.

Ten students headed down to Belize over winter break and participated in the following service learning activities:

- A disability awareness presentation for over 200 high school students
- A PT career education session for high school students
- An injury prevention clinic for soccer and volleyball teams at a high school
- An autism inservice for teachers
- Home visits for adults and children
- A walk-in orthopedic clinic
- A PT clinic in the village of San Antonio
- A health fair during the market in the middle of town (Punta Gorda)
- Painting the pediatric ward at the local hospital
- Building a ramp for a man who had been home-bound for two months

As faculty, we feel we know our students fairly well in the classroom. What astonishes us is their talents outside of academia. For instance, Lisa Clopper sang the national anthem at a Milwaukee Bucks game in November. Jeff “Boa” Breunig won a collegiate eating competition and is invited to Nationals, which will be broadcast by CBS in its “Alternative Sports Series” slot! Brett “the Mealworm” Maxwell and Ryan “The Cookie Monster” DeRose also competed in this prestigious event.

Upcoming events include the Polar Plunge on February 20, where students have formed a team called “License to Chill” to raise funds for Special Olympics Wisconsin. On March 6, the Thera-Band Academy has partnered with the PT Program to provide a workshop entitled “Beyond Bands: Evidence-Based Progression of Elastic & Proprioceptive Exercises” with speaker Omar Ross, DPT, ATC. Proceeds from this course will be matched by the WPTA, and students will donate all funds to the Foundation for Physical Therapy and the Miami-Marquette Challenge.

The annual Bucky Race for Rehab is scheduled for May 2, 2010. Please watch our website for details!

• Jill Boissonnault, PT, PhD
Jill presented “Ethics and Jurisprudence in Relation to Violence and Abuse in the Lives of Physical Therapy Clients” at the WPTA fall conference. She was appointed as a member of the Women’s Health Specialization Academy of Content Experts (SACE) as an item writer for a two-year term and was appointed to be one of APTA’s Media Spokespersons for 2009-2011. In addition, Jill was appointed to the WCPT Satellite Program review committee for the 2011 WCPT Congress in Amsterdam, Netherlands for 2009-2011. Jill attended the International Organization of Physical Therapists in Women’s Health conference in Oeiras, Portugal in October as the immediate past-president of that organization. She is part of the diagnosis panel for women’s health at the Combined Sections Meeting. Locally, Jill was a committee member on the organizational committee for the Health Sciences Teaching Symposium at UW-Madison on January 12th, 2010. Upcoming ethics courses are as follows: March 9th-Columbia St. Marys in Milwaukee, May 13th-Agnesian Hospital in Fond Du Lac, October 25th-St. Mary’s in Green Bay. TBD-a course scheduled in Madison in the summer or early fall 2010. (Remember that the Wisconsin licensure cycle is shortened this time so the renewal requirement for four hours of ethics ends February 28th, 2011.) Contact information for registration is Lisa Levy at levy@pt.wisc.edu.

• William Boissonnault, PT, DHSc, FAAOMPT
Bill presented on “Medical Screening and Diagnostic Imaging” at the WPTA fall conference, the University of Tennessee – Memphis, the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse, Arkansas State University, and for private practices in Portland, Maine, Williamsburg, Virginia, and the Veterans Hospital in Milwaukee, WI. Bill has been appointed to be a WPTA representative for the APTA Direct Access Initiative. He is presenting at the Combined Sections Meeting with Julie Sherry, PT, MS (Class of 1995) and Marc Sherry, PT, DPT for the Health Policy Section on “Implementing Direct Access in an Academic Center Outpatient Orthopedic PT Practice.”

• Stacey Brickson, PT, PhD
Stacey was invited to participate in the APTA’s “Vitalizing Practice Through Research and Research Through Practice” conference in Philadelphia this past December. She is an author on two research articles: “The Influence of Macrophage Depletion on Ligament Healing” and “The Influence of Interleukin-4 on Ligament Healing,” submitted for peer review by colleague Dr. Connie Chamberlain. Stacey will present these data at the Orthopedic Research Society Conference in New Orleans in March. Stacey was recently awarded funding by the Medical School Research Committee for her grant entitled “Roles of Neutrophils and Macrophages in Recovery of Muscle Function Following Stretch Injury in Mice.”

• Judy Dewane, PT, DSc, MHS, NCS
Judy and Bryan Heiderscheit’s poster entitled “Trail making test enhances discrimination with the dynamic gait index to distinguish elderly fallers and non-fallers without known cognitive decline” will be presented at the International Congress on Gait and Mental Function in Washington, D.C. February 26-28.

• Kristi Hallisy, PT, MS, OCS, CMPT, CPI
In her role as Upper and Lower Quarter unit coordinator for the UW/Meriter Orthopedic Physical Therapy Clinical Residency Program, Kristi recently taught the following: “Serial Close-Packing and Manipulation of the Wrist/Hand;” “Mobilization/Manipulation of the Elbow;” and “Lower Leg Ankle Foot Unit.”

• Bryan Heiderscheit, PT, PhD
Bryan spoke on “Running Biomechanics: Evaluation and Treatment Strategies” at the WPTA fall conference. He was an invited lecturer at Penn State University’s Departments of Kinesiology and Sports Medicine, presenting on “Hamstring Strain Injuries: Recommendations for Diagnosis, Rehabilitation and Injury Reduction.” He was also an invited lecturer at the University of Michigan’s Sports Medicine Department, where he taught “Examination and Treatment of Running Related Injuries.” Bryan organized and co-presented a symposium at the Combined Sections Meeting entitled “Keeping the Feet on the Road: Prevention and Treatment of Common Running Injuries,” and is participating on a platform entitled “Recognizing Runner’s Dystonia.” He was recently elected vice-chair of the Biomechanics special interest group of the APTA Section on Research and appointed co-chair of the Running Injury special interest group of the APTA Sports Physical Therapy Section. Bryan was also elected to the Nominating Committee of the WPTA. The following posters will be displayed at the Combined Sections Meeting:
2. Cook, K., Heiderscheit, B. Physical therapy management of a young adult with hip arthrosis.

• Karen Patterson, PT, MA, MS, PCS
Karen attended the APTA Section of Pediatrics Annual Conference in Orlando in January.

• Mary Sesto, PT, PhD
Mary is the principal investigator on a proposal funded by the University of Wisconsin Graduate School to evaluate the feasibility and effectiveness of a web-based, patient-centered intervention to improve employment outcomes among breast cancer survivors. Gregg Vanderheiden, Mary Sesto and the Trace Center Staff have been awarded a five-year center grant for the Telecommunications Access Rehabilitation Engineering Research Center for $4.75M by the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research, U.S. Dept of Education. They will be partnering with Gallaudet University and Omnitor A.B. of Sweden.

• Jill Thein-Nissenbaum, MPT, DSc, ATC, SCS
Jill spoke on “The Female Athlete: Understanding Development, Common Disorders and Competition” at the WPTA fall conference and spoke to the Badger diving team about injury prevention and core stabilization. Jill is the Read for Credit Coordinator for the Journal of Orthopedic and Sports Physical Therapy.

• Sue Wenker, PT, MS, GCS
Sue spoke on “Making Ideas Reality: Developing a Framework for Creating and Implementing Programs and Projects” at the WPTA fall conference and spoke on the use of standardized patients at the Health Sciences and Learning Center symposium in January. Sue writes the following to CCCEs and CIs: “On behalf of the faculty and staff, I would like to thank the Center Coordinators of Clinical Education and the Clinical Instructors who share their time and expertise to educate the UW-Madison Physical Therapy students! We are appreciative of the time it takes to prepare for their arrival and to plan for their educational needs while at your facility. As a token of our appreciation, we would like to share with you the following opportunities: Apply for an Honorary Associate Position by completing the line forms located at http://www.orthorehab.wisc.edu/physical-therapy/academic/clinical_education.shtml and returning them to Sue Wenker at wenker@pt.wisc.edu; attend one of the free upcoming ethics courses in 2010 (listed under Jill Boissonnault); and finally, fine-tune your clinical education skills by attending the Credentialed Clinical Instructor Course on May 20 and 21, 2010 at the UW-Madison DPT program. Additional information for the course can be located at the above website.”

The following letters were sent by alumni who could not attend the reunion. In addition, you can read an article in the Monterey County Herald on alumnus Leon Stutzman (Class of 1949):

Glen Wheeler (Class of 1952)

Dear Lisa,

I am Glen Wheeler, class of "52." Much as I would love to attend the P.T. Reunion, I am unable to at this time.

I've often wondered how many of the class of "52" are still around and how their careers have gone. I was in private practice for thirty years in San Gabriel, California and retired in 1995. My wife, Shirley, and I have been married for 54 years and we have one son, Kevin, who teaches at Mira Costa Community College here in California.

I also think it would be interesting to discuss with the students all the changes that have occurred in the last fifty seven years. I always enjoy telling how I decided to enroll at the U.W. in August, went to the school, paid my $65.00 tuition for the semester, and became a student.

Again, it would have been nice to attend your party, but I will be thinking of you, my fellow class mates, and my old instructors, Brigg, Bryce and Kohli. My late brother, Donald, graduated with the class of "50." I have him to thank for my career.

Know you will have a great time.

I would love to hear from any of my class mates that may attend. My e-mail is wheeler@keyway.net.

Thank you Lisa for all you have done.

Sincerely

Glen L. Wheeler (Class of 1952)

Ellen Long Rebstock (Class of 1966)

Lisa,

Thank you for the invitation to the PT school alumni reunion. What a delightful event that will be. I am not going to be able to attend but I would like you to share this update with my classmates who graduated on 6/6/66! That explains a lot, doesn’t it!

I married David Rebstock in August 1965, so I graduated as Ellen Rebstock, although I started school as Ellen Long. I worked several places in Milwaukee in the '60s starting with St Luke’s Hospital. In 1971, we moved to Scheveningen, Holland for David’s job and I took on homemaking and being a mother to Mark (1967), Timothy (1969) and Peter (1973) full-time. We moved back to Milwaukee in 1974 and to Chicago in 1976, where I worked at Ravenswood Hospital for a few months. From 1976 to 1988, we were full-time staff of the Institute of Cultural Affairs, an NGO working of community and inpatient hospital rehab department at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital.

I retired on disability from there in April 2008 and continue to deal with a neurosarcoid which has affected my hearing and balance. The treatment, long term steroids and immune suppressants, has left me vulnerable to any infection which comes along - so the hospital was not a good place to be. I have lost touch with all of my classmates with all of our moving around, even Jane Roberts, who was my roommate and bridesmaid! Please share my contact information with her if you know how to get in touch with her.

Jeff Everson (Class of 1975)

Margaret Kohli and Janet Lemke were the head honchos when I graduated as class president back in 1975. The newspaper article enclosed has the timing a bit off ("Behind the Cactus: The One Man Landscape Project"). I now maintain about 125,000 square feet of landscaping…I “spun off” and obtained my PhD in Exercise Physiology (Fran Nagle was my advisor there when I started bio-dynamics and I had finished all the requirements, but the final touches on my doctoral dissertation, when I left the UW for CA)...I also won the Mr. America competition for men over 40 in 1992. (I was always a big hit with the nurses on orthopedics for getting post low back surgical patients out of bed for the first week!). Lots of “dead” weight lifting sometimes…and the Superman Simon article is an example of PT influence, I suspect. As to publishing magazines, I have to say that my base PT education was magnificently beneficial for me…and I had four years of English at Whitewater BEFORE Ms. Kohli graciously let me come into the PT program in 1974 rather than going back to school to get a certificate. I had been accepted to Mayo and both Galveston and Dallas medical school but decided to go to UW and never regretted it.

Continued success...

Nancy Thompson (Class of 1982)

Hello,

Am writing to thank you for the invitation for the PT reunion but I won’t be able to attend. Here’s a brief update for the record:

I’m a 1982 graduate and am living in Waynesville, NC (just outside of Asheville in the western part of NC). During the Medicare home health & nursing home rehab reimbursement changes in the late 1990’s, I lost my job for the second time and decided to leave PT. The job market in Asheville was horrible and I wasn’t willing to move again. I went back to school and in 2000, I earned my CPA license and since have been working as an CPA in a small accounting firm. I haven’t been able to get PT out my blood as I continue to provide therapeutic body work for friends and family. In case my fellow 1982 grads remember, I’m still driving a red car through the mountains of NC!

Please say hello to all the other 1982 grads – I wish you all the best.

Al Keizer (Class of 1992)

Hello Lisa,

I just wanted to get back to you about the invitation I received awhile back. Unfortunately, I won’t be able to attend due to some other obligations. I’d have really liked to attend—it’s probably been 15 years since I’ve been to a Badger hockey game. What a great idea. Please accept my regrets and my thankfulness to you and any others involved in orchestrating this. I know how much work goes into planning these things. I hope everyone who is able to attend has a great time and also thank the Badgers win! –Al Keizer (Class of 1992)

Leon Stutzman (Class of 1949)

Monterey County Herald (California), January 4, 2010 Monday
Pacific Grove man lives a life blended with harmony
BYLINE: BY DENNIS TAYLOR Herald Staff Writer

Leon Stutzman was the 19-year-old navigator of a B-24 bomber that flew missions over Northern Italy and Austria near the end World War II. He believes he was the first physical therapist ever to hang a shingle in Monterey. But he might be best remembered locally as a member of a regionally famous barbershop quartet, Plus Four, that played gigs all over the Western United States in the 1950s.

Now 85, and a resident of Forest Hill Manor in Pacific Grove, Stutzman smiles broadly when he remembers those days when he blended his deep, resonant, bass singing voice with those of baritone Neil Keefer (who lives midway between Monterey and Salinas), tenor Eugene Smith and lead singer Walter "Buck" Williams (both deceased.)

"Buck Williams was a Monterey optometrist and a great singer, and he basically was the kingpin of the group," Leon says. "He was director of the chorus I part of, and he was the one who decided to put Plus Four together Gene Smith was director of the Salinas barbershop chapter at the time. Neil Keefer was an excellent baritone. Buck asked me to join them as the bass. They wrote many of the songs they performed. Their union lasted 60 years and produced four children, then four grandchildren. Mary Lou, as he called her, was a political dynamo in Monterey County, a 50-year member of the League of Women Voters and part of their state board. She was instrumental in getting low-income housing built in Soledad, and helped with programs that taught English as a second language. Mary Lou died four years ago, but multiple photos of her still adorn the walls of his apartment. After graduating from college, Leon and Mary Lou moved to Portland, Ore., where he spent three years at the first free-standing physical therapy unit in U.S. history. They came to California in 1952, and he obtained his master's degree from Stanford before they settled the following year in Monterey.

Office on Cass Street

"I was Monterey’s first physical therapist," he says. "I opened my own office on Cass Street at a time when there were only four medical offices on the block. We rented half of the first floor of a big, three-story home, just half-a-block away, so I could walk to work." Stutzman was the first physical therapist ever hired by Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, working there part-time in 1953.

His time with the Plus Four barbershop quartet, which spanned from 1951-57, provided some of the best moments of his life, he says... "Buck Williams was a Monterey optometrist and a great singer, and he basically was the kingpin of the group," Leon says. "He was director of the chorus I part of, and he was the one who decided to put Plus Four together Gene Smith was director of the Salinas barbershop chapter at the time. They even had groupies, Leon says...

Moves to Air Corps

And as lives go, his has been a full one. "I had finished one semester as a chemistry major at the University of Wisconsin when I got drafted into the Army," he recalls. "I was part of the infantry, at basic training in Texas, when one of the officers walked in and asked if anybody wanted to transfer to the Air Corps. Three of us decided we wanted to give that a try."...

Skills tested

...Stutzman left the military as a first lieutenant and returned to the University of Wisconsin, where he changed his major from chemistry to physical therapy after working a part-time job at a hospital. "I was the only guy in the program with 17 women," he says. "And one of the M.D.s said, ‘What in the world is a young man doing in a woman’s field!’"

Honestly, he wasn’t in it to meet women. "By that time I was already going steady," he says with a laugh. "I was standing outside a lecture hall one day and started a conversation with a young lady I found interesting. Then, I copied her name down during roll call." It was August when he began dating Mary Louise Chase, a straight-A student in International Studies. He married her the following February. Their union lasted 60 years and produced four children, then four grandchildren. Mary Lou, as he called her, was a political dynamo in Monterey County, a 50-year member of the League of Women Voters and part of their state board. She was instrumental in getting low-income housing built in Soledad, and helped with programs that taught English as a second language. Mary Lou died four years ago, but multiple photos of her still adorn the walls of his apartment. In Memorium

March 1, 1967 - January 27, 2010
Jon Kenton Waller, a man with a passion for life and a love of laughter, passed away on Wednesday, Jan. 27, 2010. Jon was born on March 1, 1967, to Lois (Eaton) and Richard Waller in Janesville, WI. Jon was a mischievous child who loved his parents and family throughout his life. He was a graduate of Evansville High School, class of 1985, where he played on the football, basketball, and track teams. After high school, he attended UW-Whitewater and received his bachelor’s degree in 1989. In 1991, Jon met the love of his life, Jeri-Lynn (Benisch), through a mutual friend, and they were later married on Jan. 11, 1997. They have been constant companions for the past nineteen years. Jon, who was always curious and striving, returned to school at UW-Madison to pursue a degree in physical therapy, graduating in 1998. Jon and Jeri-Lynn embarked on their travels throughout the world, from the Great Pyramids in Egypt, to the art museums of Italy, and the friendly pubs in Ireland. Wherever they went, Jon was never too shy to strike up a conversation and make a new friend, espousing on politics, current events, and popular culture. Jon was, above all, an entertainer. He loved to cook, with or without the aid of recipes, and spent many hours tending to his creations, even making his own chili powder, for his family and friends.

Jon is survived by his wife and very best friend, Jeri-Lynn; his devoted parents, Lois and Richard Waller; his siblings, Renee (Waller) Meichtry and Nathan Waller; his adored niece and god-daughter, Erin Meichtry and her father, David Meichtry; his mother-in-law, Hazel Benisch; his sister-in-law, Brenda Benisch; and his many cherished friends, both far and near and big and small. Jon was preceded in death by his grandparents, Mildred and Kenneth Eaton and Hazel and Harold Waller; his father-in-law, Don Benisch; his aunts, Martha Jean (Waller) Riggs, Mary (Waller) Conder; and cousin, Mitch Conder.

News from Your Classmates

Shannon (Buhs) DeSalvo (1995): I had a baby girl last year and was able to teach my Prenatal Exercise Class up until my due date. I also received the “CAPP” (Certificate of Achievement in Pelvic Physical Therapy) through the APTA Section on Women’s Health in the summer of 2008.

Penelope (Adoo) Van Osten (2002): Since graduation, I have been living in San Diego and working in outpatient ortho. I work with some great PTs and surgeons. I love the weather but greatly miss Wisconsin and will probably find myself back there someday! There are, however, many Wisconsin grads out here that have all managed to find each other thus somewhat curbing my occasional homesickness (including fellow classmates Brian Lambe and Megan Smith). It’s great to see the UW PT Program flourishing and I look forward to reading of all its new endeavors!

How can you get in touch with classmates?
We have many alumni call and ask if we can give them class lists; unfortunately, we do not have access to this information. You can connect with fellow alumni on our Facebook page OR if you are willing to be a class representative, send me your email address and I will publish it in the next newsletter. That way, classmates can connect with you and you can organize an event for our next alumni reunion in fall 2011!

Keep In Touch! We want to hear from you!
